Scheme To Blow Up American
Installations Revealed
By CIC Agents

FRANKFURT, Sept. 7—American Army intelligence agents, working with lightning speed, today completed the cracking of a German underground sabotage ring even before it had a chance to destroy one American installation.

Quick-witted members of the counter-intelligence corps, helped by a 19-year-old German blonde who talked too much for her lover's good, have captured 1,200 pounds of dynamite and arrested over 40 saboteurs including the ringleader.

The blonde and her girl friend were first picked up by the CIC for routine questioning. Frightened, they revealed the fact that a notorious Gestapo officer, after fleeing Cologne, was working as a baker in Weimar and planning with other Germans to disrupt American communications and transportation.

The CIC already had its observers watching the baker, who appeared outwardly as a mild-mannered man busy at his work.

He was co-ordinator of the underground organization and kept a flow of letters with coded instructions moving from village to village.

The organization's leader, who was in love with the blonde, suspected nothing when—at the suggestion of the CIC—she asked him to meet her at the gang's hide-out.

The leader, a former commander of secret police in a large German province, showed up on schedule but found American agents and handcuffs waiting to greet him.

He later attempted suicide by slashing his wrists.

The CIC reported that all the Germans involved in the sabotage plot had been members of the Nazi intelligence corps. Their instructions were to wait until a good moment presented itself and then to destroy American installations simultaneously over a vast area.

In one incident, American agents saw a prominent German chocolate manufacturer handing a fellow German a stick of dynamite. They walked inside the candy factory and found it crammed with dynamite caps and explosives.

All those who have been arrested face the death penalty under military law, if they are convicted.

VETERAN BONUS DRIVE BEGINS

Programs Costing Up To $40,000,000,000 Among
Plans Suggested

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—A drive got underway today for veterans' adjusted compensation that would make the last war's bonus look cheap.

Rep. John Rankin, D. Miss., chairman of the house veterans committee, predicted passage at this session for his bill to pay all veterans with more than 90 days service $20 a week for a year.

Two major veterans organizations claimed backing for rival plans that would adjust pay on the basis of length and type of service with a maximum bonus of $5,000.

Rankin said his proposal would cost $10,000,000,000. Other sources put the cost as high as $12,000,000,000. World War I's bonus cost $2,766,890,184.

President Truman, in his recommendations to congress on veterans, did not mention a bonus. Should he approve one he would break with the tradition of presidents from Harding through Roosevelt, who consistently vetoed the World War I bonus.

Rankin's bill got a cool reception from committeemen before the recess. He said today a poll indicated they would now approve it. Passage in some form is probable at this session, he asserted.

"The money this bill would cost would be well-spent if it encourages veterans into productive activity," Rankin declared. He said the present GI bill provision for (Continued on Page Two)

HALSEY ALMOST GIVES UP HOPE OF TOKYO RIDE

ABOARD ADMIRAL HALSEY'S FLAGSHIP, TOKYO BAY, Sept. 7—Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey has just about given up hope of riding Emperor Hirohito's white horse.

He suspects that Hirohito decided to surrender Japan solely to cheat him out of that long-sought ride through the streets of Tokyo. There still is a slim chance that he may get astride the white charger, but it's a pretty remote one. Scuttlebutt has it that the First cavalry division may attempt to deliver the horse after the division moves into Tokyo tomorrow.

The division already has made Halsey an honorary member and sent him its shoulder patch. The cavalrymen also offered him any among a dozen dusty gray Japanese horses they had found ashore. Halsey declined. For him, it was "all or nothing."

"Bull" confesses the last thing in the world he wants is a champagne, spirited horse since he never has ridden in his life.

Fatal Heart Attack Ends Career Of Adm. McCain, Famed Task Force Leader

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Sept. 7—Vice Adm. John S. McCain, who died less than 24 hours after returning to this country from surrender ceremonies in the Pacific, was worn out from the strain of the final battle against Japan, a Navy physician said today.

McCain, peppery, 61-year-old commander of famed Task Force 38, died suddenly of a heart attack last night at his home in nearby Coronado.

He was a veteran of 41 years in the Navy. McCain was exhausted from his activities in the last four months in the final effort to batter Japan to her knees, the Navy doctor said.

The slight, wiry admiral, one of the Navy's strongest advocates of air power, was suffering from a slight cold but generally considered in good health when he arrived here Wednesday from Pearl Harbor.

He had planned to spend a few days resting at home before continuing to Washington, D. C., where he reportedly was to accept a position as director of naval veterans affairs in the veterans' administration.

With McCain when he died were his widow, Catherine, and his aide, Lt. Cmdr. Don Thornburn of New York City, who had accompanied him from Japan.

McCain fought the Japs ferociously because he hated them. Like his boss, Adm. William (Bull) Halsey, he told reporters at Pearl Harbor a few days ago that he would have liked to kick every Jap at the surrender ceremony aboard the U. S. S. Missouri.

They looked at the American officers "the way a man measures you when he's going to hit you," he said then. The Japs, he had declared, weren't "half-licked" and (Continued on Page Two)

Romulo Praises McNutt As
'A Man Who Knows Needs'
Of Philippines

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, president commissioner of the Philippines, said today he was certain the islands will attain their independence on July 4, 1946, if not before.

"The sooner we begin doing for ourselves what we sooner or later have to shoulder anyway, the better for us," he told the United Press.

Romulo emphatically denied that President Truman's appointment of Paul V. McNutt to be high commissioner might indicate a re-examination of the Philippine question and a postponement of the independence date.

Several months ago McNutt suggested postponement until Philippines relief needs had been met. In some quarter there was speculation that this policy might prevail.

Romulo said McNutt's nomination at the present time indicates not delay but prompt action toward the twin goals of Philippine independence and rehabilitation.

He said McNutt returned from his recent visit to the islands "appalled by the plight of the people" and praised him as "a man who knows our needs." The Filipinos estimate their war damage at $1,300,000,000.

END OF LONG, HARD ROAD

Allied Commander Has Come

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, YOKOHAMA, Sept. 7—Plans were completed today for Gen. Douglas MacArthur's triumphal entry into bomb-ravaged Tokyo about 10 a. m. tomorrow (9 p. m. today, ewt).

The supreme commander is expected to raise the stars and stripes over the American embassy across the street from Emperor Hirohito's palace at 10:30 a. m. (9:30 p. m. today, ewt).

The ceremony will symbolize the final act of Japan's capitulation. The flag is the same one which flew from the capitol on Washington on Pearl Harbor day in 1941 and since has flown over Berlin and Rome and from the masthead of the Missouri during the signing of Japan's surrender last Sunday.

MacArthur will return to his Yokohama headquarters after the flag-raising. He ultimately will establish his headquarters in the Tokyo embassy building, but not until sufficient office space and billets can be found in Tokyo for his staff.

The Seventh and Eighth regiments of the First cavalry division, chosen by MacArthur to spearhead the occupation of Tokyo, will roll into Tokyo in (Continued on Page Two)

STRIKES KEEP NEARLY 95,000 WORKERS IDLE

Nearly 95,000 workers were idle throughout the nation today in labor-management disputes over problems of reconversion.

The Detroit industrial area counted 40,000 absent from their jobs. Unable to keep assembly lines moving because of a lack of parts from the strike-bound Kelsey-Hayes Wheel co., the Ford Motor Co. laid off approximately 25,000 employees and warned that its other plants throughout the country would shut down by the end of the week if parts were not forthcoming.

Elsewhere in the motor city, automobile production was paralyzed at the Hudson Motor Car Co., where a strike of 500 supervisory employees affected 6,000 production workers. Minor Detroit area strikes accounted for the other idle workers.

Some 4,000 hard coal miners returned to the pits in Pennsylvania, but the labor picture was clouded by the threat of paralyzing strikes among white-collar Westinghouse electric corp. employees in five states.

Clerk of the local board said that due to other work which must be completed, no coupons would be mailed from the local office until early next week. At that time, she said, all available personnel would

To spur the all-out drive, the recruiting service will have three C-47 passenger planes at its disposal, in addition to 600 five-passenger staff cars; 300 station wagons; 150 1½-ton trucks, and sixty buses holding 30 passengers each. ## BUYING BASES IS SUGGESTED

Britain Might Be Helped By
U. S. Purchases Of Bases
Leased During War

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—American economists today were exploring the possibilities of partially solving Britain's financial problem by U. S. purchase of some of the 99-year leaseholds on which Atlantic naval bases were built.

It is one of several ideas Americans are considering in their search for a feasible and reasonable way of helping Britain get back on her economic feet. It may never get beyond the "thought" stage because of many obstacles—mostly political—in the way of working out such an arrangement.

Some of the advocates of such a plan, however, argue that if it could be done it would go a long way toward solving the British transitional financial problem.

The British contend they cannot further increase their foreign debts with a regular loan; the Americans contend that their domestic political situation will not allow consideration of an outright grant.

Some economists say to meet such an impasse why not look for something that Britain could sell (Continued on Page Two)

TRUMAN'S PLEA ON JOBLESS PAY MAY BE WASTED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—President Truman's renewed request for a $25-for-26-weeks jobless pay bill arrived on Capitol hill too late to do any good, it appeared today.

Skeptical senate finance committee members agreed that the section of the President's message urging enactment of the expanded pay program might just as well have been left unsaid.

The administration's bill, they agreed, is virtually dead in the senate committee.

Simultaneously it was learned that an equally inimical house ways and means committee may not attempt to send even a modified bill to the house floor for action.

Senate committee members were a little friendlier than that. They said they would try to have a bill ready for the senate in a week or two, but emphasized that it will be far from the outline sketched by Mr. Truman.

BEVIN TO MEET GREEK REGENT, SETTLE DISPUTE

LONDON, Sept. 7—Archbishop Damaskinos, bearded regent of Greece, was scheduled to meet Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin today for a consultation that may go far toward settling the ticklish Greek political situation.

Well-informed sources believed Bevin would tell Damaskinos that the new British government does not care whether Greece goes right or left in the forthcoming elections so long as the elections are free and the government is stable.

Successful settlement of the Greek political crisis, which has smoldered just beneath the surface ever since British troops put down the Greek civil war last Winter, would help restore British prestige in southeast Europe.

The new British government is not completely satisfied with the present rightist provisional Greek government and is maintaining British troops in Greece only to keep order until after the election.

ALLIES STAGE V-J PARADE IN GERMAN CAPITAL

BERLIN, Sept. 7—The Allies staged a V-J victory parade of massed infantry and armor today with Gen. George S. Patton and Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov in the reviewing stand.

It marked the first time that American, Soviet, British and French troops have marched together in a parade.

Tanks, armored cars, artillery and infantry of the four nations proceeded from the Brandenburg gate west through the Tiergarten and along the Charlottenburg chaussee, where the reviewing stand had been built.

The parade represented a belated celebration of V-J day and was held under an almost cloudless sky. There was a touch of Autumn in the air.

Each nation provided about 1,000 infantry troops. The Russians led off the parade, followed in order by the French, British and Americans. Then came about 50 armored vehicles from each of the four countries.

GEORGE PLEDGES SOME TAX RELIEF BY CHRISTMAS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—Chairman Walter F. George, D. Ga., of the tax-writing senate finance committee today promised at least partial relief from record high war taxes starting Jan. 1.

Spurred by President Truman's request for a transition tax bill to speed reconversion, George promised relief for both corporations and individuals.

"I think that a tax bill applicable for 1946 will be enacted before the Christmas holidays," he told reporters. He said the joint tax committee of both houses would get to work in new legislation within a week or two.

George and other congressional tax leaders endorsed the President's suggestion of a transition tax bill. They felt that a bill for temporary relief could be enacted quickly and a long-range general tax readjustment taken up later.

GOP SOLONS TO FIGHT NEW DEAL

Many Congressmen Contend
Truman Advocating Ideas
Of Late President

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—Republican congressmen were squaring off today against an old foe, the new deal.

There was a disposition among many Democrats too, after hearing President Truman's 18,000 word message to congress yesterday, to believe that the President had no intention of letting the new deal die, although its founder the late President Roosevelt had passed from the scene.

The house Republican steering committee met after the message was read but Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts declined to comment until he could study the lengthy document. Others were less reluctant.

"Now we have the answer," said Rep. Clarence Brown, R., O., "the country has been wondering which road the President would travel—left, right or down the middle. It looks as though he's going left."

Brown said Mr. Truman's message advocated more new deal policies than any ever sent to congress by Mr. Roosevelt.

Similar views were expressed by other Republicans, including Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, chairman of the Republican congressional committee, who said the message was "a shock to those who believed that Mr. Truman's succession to the presidency (Continued on Page Two)

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, YOKOHAMA, Sept. 7—Airmen from a carrier task force have liberated 1,200 Allied war prisoners—some of them survivors of the Bataan death march—from prison camps on Formosa, but many were expected to die before they can reach civilization.

A Navy announcement at Guam revealed that the prisoners, mostly British troops who fought at Singapore, had been forced to work from dawn to dusk for the past three years in copper mines at Kinkaseki in northern Formosa. Of the group, 193 were too weak from torture and starvation to be moved to waiting ships.

Eighty-nine Americans were among the liberated group.

END OF LONG, HARD ROAD

Allied Commander Has Come
Long Way To Rule Once
Ambitious Nips

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, YOKOHAMA, Sept. 7—Plans were completed today for Gen. Douglas MacArthur's triumphal entry into bomb-ravaged Tokyo about 10 a. m. tomorrow (9 p. m. today, ewt).

The supreme commander is expected to raise the stars and stripes over the American embassy across the street from Emperor Hirohito's palace at 10:30 a. m. (9:30 p. m. today, ewt).

The ceremony will symbolize the final act of Japan's capitulation. The flag is the same one which flew from the capitol on Washington on Pearl Harbor day in 1941 and since has flown over Berlin and Rome and from the masthead of the Missouri during the signing of Japan's surrender last Sunday.

MacArthur will return to his Yokohama headquarters after the flag-raising. He ultimately will establish his headquarters in the Tokyo embassy building, but not until sufficient office space and billets can be found in Tokyo for his staff.

The Seventh and Eighth regiments of the First cavalry division, chosen by MacArthur to spearhead the occupation of Tokyo, will roll into Tokyo in (Continued on Page Two)

STRIKES KEEP
NEARLY 95,000
WORKERS IDLE

Nearly 95,000 workers were idle throughout the nation today in labor-management disputes over problems of reconversion.

The Detroit industrial area counted 40,000 absent from their jobs. Unable to keep assembly lines moving because of a lack of parts from the strike-bound Kellogg-Hayes Wheel co., the Ford Motor Co. laid off approximately 25,000 employees and warned that its other plants throughout the country would shut down by the end of the week if parts were not forthcoming.

Elsewhere in the motor city, automobile production was paralyzed at the Hudson Motor Car Co., where a strike of 500 supervisory employees affected 6,000 production workers. Minor Detroit area strikes accounted for the other idle workers.

Some 4,000 hard coal miners returned to the pits in Pennsylvania, but the labor picture was clouded by the threat of paralyzing strikes among white-collar Westinghouse electric corp. employees in five states.

County Residents To Get

Britain Might Be Helped By
U. S. Purchases Of Bases
Leased During War

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—American economists today were exploring the possibilities of partially solving Britain's financial problem by U. S. purchase of some of the 99-year leaseholds on which Atlantic naval bases were built.

It is one of several ideas Americans are considering in their search for a feasible and reasonable way of helping Britain get back on her economic feet. It may never get beyond the "thought" stage because of many obstacles—mostly political—in the way of working out such an arrangement.

Some of the advocates of such a plan, however, argue that if it could be done it would go a long way toward solving the British transitional financial problem.

The British contend they cannot further increase their foreign debts with a regular loan; the Americans contend that their domestic political situation will not allow consideration of an outright grant.

Some economists say to meet such an impulse they not look for something that Britain could sell (Continued on Page Two)

TRUMAN'S PLEA
ON JOBLESS PAY
MAY BE WASTED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—President Truman's renewed request for a $25-for-26-weeks jobless pay bill arrived on Capitol Hill too late to do any good, it appeared today.

Skeptical senate finance committee members agreed that the section of the President's message urging enactment of the expanded pay program might just as well have been left unsaid.

The administration's bill, they agreed, is virtually dead in the senate committee.

Simultaneously it was learned that an equally inimical house ways and means committee may not attempt to send even a modified bill to the house floor for action.

Senate committee members were a little friendlier than that. They said they would try to have a bill ready for the senate in a week or two, but emphasized that it will be far from the outline sketched by Mr. Truman.

BEVIN TO MEET
GREEK REGENT,
SETTLE DISPUTE

LONDON, Sept. 7—Archbishop Damaskinos, bearded regent of Greece, was scheduled to meet Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin today for a consultation that may go far toward settling the ticklish Greek political situation.

Well-informed sources believed Bevin would tell Damaskinos that the new British government does not care whether Greece goes right or left in the forthcoming elections so long as the elections are free and the government is stable.

Successful settlement of the Greek political crisis, which has smoldered just beneath the surface ever since British troops put down the Greek civil war last winter, would help restore British prestige in southeast Europe.

The new British government is not completely satisfied with the present rightist provisional Greek government and is maintaining British troops in Greece only to keep order until after the election.

ALLIES STAGE
V-J PARADE IN GERMAN CAPITAL

BERLIN, Sept. 7—The Allies staged a V-J victory parade of massed infantry and armor today with Gen. George S. Patton and Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov in the reviewing stand.

It marked the first time that American, Soviet, British and French troops have marched together in a parade.

Tanks, armored cars, artillery and infantry of the four nations proceeded from the Brandenburg gate west through the Tiergarten and along the Charlottenburg chaussee, where the reviewing stand had been built.

The parade represented a belated celebration of V-J day and was held under an almost cloudless sky. There was a touch of Autumn in the air.

Each nation provided about 1,000 infantry troops. The Russians led off the parade, followed in order by the French, British and Americans. Then came about 50 armored vehicles from each of the four countries.

Mrs. Harry G. Brown, Ashville, was reported resting well at her home Friday morning, following a fall from a horse in which she suffered a possible fracture of her left shoulder.

She was given emergency treatment at Berger hospital and discharged to her home in Ashville.

GEORGE PLEDGES
SOME TAX RELIEF
BY CHRISTMAS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—Chairman Walter F. George, D., Ga., of the tax-writing senate finance committee today promised at least partial relief from record high war taxes starting Jan. 1.

Spurred by President Truman's request for a transition tax bill to speed reconversion, George promised relief for both corporations and individuals.

"I think that a tax bill applicable for 1946 will be enacted before the Christmas holidays," he told reporters. He said the joint tax committee of both houses would get to work in new legislation within a week or two.

George and other congressional tax leaders endorsed the President's suggestion of a transition tax bill. They felt that a bill for temporary relief could be enacted quickly and a long-range general tax readjustment taken up later.

A general atmosphere of hurry and worry still prevailed on some of the directors' faces Thursday afternoon, straightening out livestock judging contests.

Several features of the fair's entertainment side cater especially to the younger set. Though no merry-go-round was obtainable, directors said, several children's rides are on the fairgrounds, including a ferris wheel and swings. Favorite with the children so far has been the ponies. All of them fell in love with the pony colt, which follows its mother around the riding circle when she carries a young passenger around.

Several granges and other Pickaway county organizations are operating lunch concessions at the fair, and some of them are serving particularly good barbecued beef, reason enough to visit the fair.

LARGEST LAND PLANE SUCCESS ON FIRST FLIGHT

LONG BEACH, Calif., Sept. 7.—The giant Douglas C-74 globemaster, world's largest land plane, "handles as though it had been flying for years," the test pilot who took the big ship on its maiden flight said today.

"The test went even better than anticipated," veteran flier Ben O. Howard declared. He guided the 77-ton plane on an hour, 19 minute test flight over the Los Angeles area yesterday from Long Beach municipal airport.

Four 28-cylinder Pratt and Whitney Wasp major R-360 engines pulled the Globemaster into the air 14 seconds after it sped down the runway as military and Douglas technicians watched.

The mighty ship, with a 173-foot wing span and speed of more than 300 miles per hour, will have its commercial counterpart in the DC-7, which will carry 108 passengers and a crew of 13. Cargo compartments and dressing rooms will be provided, with an up-to-date galley to serve full-course meals.

TRUMAN DODGES ANY BLAME OF PEARL HARBOR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—President Truman is stepping nimbly away today from the shower of political mud expected to splatter when congress begins its investigation of Pearl Harbor.

The investigation was approved in the senate yesterday with the President's endorsement. It will be agreed to in the house next week. There will probably be a joint committee of five members from each house.

Questioned at his press conference yesterday afternoon, Mr. Truman quickly aligned himself with the rest of the public by saying he knew nothing about the Pearl Harbor disaster except what he read in the newspapers.

In other words, this isn't his baby and if it crosses someone else will have to take it. He said he had agreed with Democratic congressional leaders that there should be an investigation to get the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

CLARK IS NAMED HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—Dane Clark, movie tough guy turned comedian, was chosen today by the nation's motion picture exhibitors as the "star of tomorrow."

McCain, whose 20 years at sea evidenced his indisposition to become a "swivel-chair" admiral, gained a reputation as one of the Navy's toughest fighters in the early days of the war when he commanded all land-based fighters in the Pacific.

He played a major role in the fighting at Guadalcanal and Tulagi. Under his command, carrier force 38 routed the imperial Navy in every great sea battle between the Philippines and Formosa.

In recent months, the battle-hardened task force struck heavy blows against the enemy home islands.

During these operations, McCain from the bridge of his flagship, lambasted the Japs with verbal weapons which probably no man in the Navy but Halsey himself could equal.

Although long convinced of the importance of naval aeronautics, it wasn't until 1935, when he was 51 years old, that the ruddy, freckle-faced Navy commander earned his wings. McCain studied flight training at the naval air station at Pensacola, Fla., and learned to fly every type of modern plane.

"I was stubborn about it," he admitted.

He remained a staunch supporter of naval air power until the end.

"If anyone's in doubt about what won the war outside of the atomic bomb, I can tell them it was the fast carriers," McCain had boasted. "In fact," he added, "give me enough fast carriers and you can have the atomic bomb."

A native of Teoc, Miss., McCain came from a family that was predominantly Army. His uncle was the late Maj. Gen. Henry P. McCain, who was awarded the distinguished service cross for his services as adjutant general of the Army during the first World War. A brother is Brig. Gen. William A. McCain, USA, retired.

McCain attended high school in Carrollton, Miss., and from there went to the University of Mississippi, where he was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1902.

During World War I, he served as an engineer aboard the cruiser San Diego, forerunner of the mighty warship which led the U. S. Third fleet into Tokyo bay last week.

In August, 1943, the Navy recognized the importance of combined sea and air power and McCain was appointed to the newly-created office of deputy chief of naval operations for air with the rank of vice-admiral.

He left the post a few months later to go back to sea and win honor after honor for his direction of the mighty task force which in the last few months of the war destroyed or damaged 6,000 Japanese war planes and accounted for 2,000,000 tons of enemy shipping.

In addition to his widow and brother, survivors include two sons, Gordon, Pasadena attorney, and Cmdr. John S. McCain Jr., now serving in the submarine service in Tokyo bay, and a daughter, Catherine, a Red Cross worker in France. He also leaves another brother, Joseph McCain of Teoc, and two sisters, Miss Katie McCain of Teoc, and Mrs. Luther Spencer, Carrollton, Miss.

They will assemble at the main Tokyo railway station by 10 a. m. and then march 10 blocks to the embassy for the flag-raising ceremony.

The First cavalry band and the Seventh regiment, once commanded by Custer at Little Bighorn, will lead the parade with "F" troops of the second battalion providing a special honor guard for MacArthur.

For MacArthur, Tokyo marks the end of a long road that led from Manila in 1941 through Batavia, Corregidor, Australia, New Guinea and other island stepping stones to the enemy homeland.

He will arrive in Tokyo as supreme ruler of the country that once sought to dominate the world with her Axis partners. Hirohito, the Japanese government and the imperial general staff already are doing his bidding.

The Japanese people slowly have begun the task of repairing their bomb-pitted capital. Demobilized soldiers, clad partly in uniforms and partly in civilian clothes, slowly and painfully were filling in bomb craters and piling up rubble.

Tokyo was declared "in bounds" again for correspondents at noon today (11 p. m. Thursday, EWT). The first car of each of the two trains operating daily between Yokosuka and Tokyo were re-arranged for American officers and correspondents.

Admiral William F. Halsey, meantime, disclosed that an American prize crew has taken over the Japanese battleship Fuji, presumably in Japan's inland sea. He also reported that five Japanese destroyers, two minelayers, two picket boats, four submarine chasers, six minesweepers, four submarines and 180 midget submarines have been seized.

Fleet dispatches said first units of Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge's U. S. 24th corps will land at Jinsen on the west coast of Korea about 2:30 p. m. tomorrow (1:30 a. m. EWT).

Japanese governor-general abn. Lt. Gen. Yoshio Kozuki, commanding the Japanese 17th army group, and Vice-Admiral Gishaburo Yamaguchi, commander of naval forces in Korea, will surrender the southern Korean garrison of 185,000.

American occupation of Keijo, capital of Korea and 25 miles inland from Jinsen, will follow the surrender ceremony. An advance party of 25 men flew into the Keijo area yesterday.

Units of Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid's powerful seventh fleet units were scheduled to join Rear Admiral Daniel E. Barbey's seventh amphibious force in the Yellow sea today for the voyage to Jinsen.

Northern Korea has been occupied by Russia.

BIG INCH LINE EXPECTED TO BE ABANDONED

Washington news reports Friday said that the "Big Inch" pipeline which runs through Pickaway county may be abandoned but not destroyed.

Built as a war emergency measure at a cost of $90,000,000, the line has been a controversial issue for some time. No one oil company in the United States, produces enough oil in any one year to use the line at full capacity. Unless operated at full capacity the line could not be operated profitably.

Oil industry spokesmen, as well as some federal officials, have predicted that the system would turn out to be an expensive "war orphan". Now, in its third year of operation the "Big Inch" has transported 8,200,000 gallons of oil from Texas to the Philadelphia-New York area.

His amendment would simply strike out the unemployment clause in the G. I. bill, making the payments automatic for all veterans serving the minimum three-month period. Each serviceman would get $1,040.

Rankin's proposal is opposed by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled American Veterans. They say any bonus should be based on length and type of service.

Their plans, though different, are both based on payments of $3 a day for domestic service and $4 a day for overseas service. With a $500 adjustment for wounds, maximum payments would be $5,000.

Omar Ketchum, legislative director of the VFW, said Rankin's bill would not suffice. He estimated the VFW plan would cost $25,000,000,000. Millward W. Rice, national service director of the DAV, said DAV's proposal would cost $40,000,000,000.

TRAINING ENDS AT LOCKBOURNE

Washington Reports State Air Base Now On 'Stand-By' Status

Army Air Forces training will be discontinued at Lockbourne Army Air Base on or before September 30 but ultimate disposition of the base has not been decided yet, according to report from Washington.

Lockbourne and 14 other Army airfields which are to go on the inactive status not later than September 30, if not needed for post-war training purposes, are expected to be released to the surplus property board.

Officials at Lockbourne are awaiting official confirmation of the training shutdown from Eastern Training command headquarters, Maxwell field, Alabama, and have received no information as to future plans for the base.

Thousands of Army bomber pilots have been trained at the 2000-acre base near here. The original investment in the base, construction of which started in the Winter of 1941-42, was $8,000,000 but hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent since.

It is reported Columbus authorities are seeking to learn the possibilities of the city obtaining the grounds in the event the base is abandoned.

VETERANS MUST GET LICENSE TO DRIVE IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, Sept. 7.—Frank M. Quinn, acting chief of the state bureau of motor vehicles, said today that returned veterans must have a driver's license the same as anyone else.

He added, however, that under the law an honorably discharged serviceman can obtain a driver's license without taking a test within six months after his discharge. Quinn said that inquiries received by his office indicated that many persons apparently believed that a veteran does not need to obtain a license for six months.

Most officers must take a driver's test, however, because they receive certificates of service when they revert to inactive status. These do not exempt them from tests, Quinn said.

TRUCK WRECKED IN COLLISION; DRIVER IS FINED

David Eugene Shover, 200 West street, Jackson, Ohio, was fined $10 and costs, and committed to county jail awaiting payment of the fine Friday morning following an accident in which the coal truck which he was driving was completely destroyed when it was struck by a tractor-trailer outfit on Route 23 near Circleville, sheriff's department stated.

Shover was said to have been passing another vehicle on a curve, when the approaching truck appeared around the curve. Shover said he applied his brakes, but that they failed to respond, and he went across the road in front of the trailer-truck, deputies added. When the truck hit his vehicle, he went on into the ditch, and the back wheels of his truck were torn out by the collision. Coal was scattered all over the field, sheriffs said.

The trailer-truck was driven by Raymond Willis, 333 Newell street, Barberton, Ohio, and belonged to I. A. Barnett, Barberton. Willis said he was forced to cross the road to keep from hitting the coal truck more forcibly, and in doing so ran into a telephone pole, knocking two cross arms off of it.

Donald Harris, 186 West street, Jackson, Ohio, a soldier, was riding with Shover.

GOP SOLONS TO FIGHT NEW DEAL

Sen. Alexander Wiley, R., Wis., complained that the message did not call for "demobilization of the over-expanded bureaucracy."

While some southern Democrats who have opposed new deal measures regarded the message as "new dealish," they were not inclined to pick a quarrel with Mr. Truman.

Rep. E. E. Cox, D., Ga., a southern leader who no doubt disapproves some of Mr. Truman's specific recommendations, though the message recognized congress "as a co-equal branch of government." He said it showed "recognition of the authority of public opinion and a disinclination to want any power not vested in the executive by the constitution."

Edulica, in Roman legend, was the goddess who protected the children, whose food she was believed to bless.

selves as being very pleased with the results of the first days' operations, and said they thought the remaining three days would be even better.

A general atmosphere of hurry and worry still prevailed on some of the directors' faces Thursday afternoon, straightening out livestock judging contests.

Several features of the fair's entertainment side cater especially to the younger set. Though no merry-go-round was obtainable, directors said, several children's rides are on the fairgrounds, including a ferris wheel and swings. Favorite with the children so far has been the ponies. All of them fell in love with the pony colt, which follows its mother around the riding circle when she carries a young passenger around.

Several granges and other Pickaway county organizations are operating lunch concessions at the fair, and some of them are serving particularly good barbecued beef, reason enough to visit the fair.

LARGEST LAND PLANE SUCCESS ON FIRST FLIGHT

LONG BEACH, Calif., Sept. 7.—The giant Douglas C-74 globemaster, world's largest land plane, "handles as though it had been flying for years," the test pilot who took the big ship on its maiden flight said today.

"The test went even better than anticipated," veteran flier Ben O. Howard declared. He guided the 77-ton plane on an hour, 19 minute test flight over the Los Angeles area yesterday from Long Beach municipal airport.

Four 25-cylinder Pratt and Whitney Wasp major R-360 engines pulled the Globemaster into the air 14 seconds after it sped down the runway as military and Douglas technicians watched.

The mighty ship, with a 173-foot wing span and speed of more than 300 miles per hour, will have its commercial counterpart in the DC-7, which will carry 108 passengers and a crew of 13. Cargo compartments and dressing rooms will be provided, with an up-to-date galley to serve full-course meals.

TRUMAN DODGES ANY BLAME OF PEARL HARBOR

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—President Truman is stepping nimbly away today from the shower of political mud expected to splatter when congress begins its investigation of Pearl Harbor.

The investigation was approved in the senate yesterday with the President's endorsement. It will be agreed to in the house next week. There will probably be a joint committee of five members from each house.

Questioned at his press conference yesterday afternoon, Mr. Truman quickly aligned himself with the rest of the public by saying he knew nothing about the Pearl Harbor disaster except what he read in the newspapers.

In other words, this isn't his baby and if it crows someone else will have to take it. He said he had agreed with Democratic congressional leaders that there should be an investigation to get the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

CLARK IS NAMED HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—Dane Clark, movie tough guy turned comedian, was chosen today by the nation's motion picture exhibitors as the "star of tomorrow".

Fatal Heart Attack Ends Career Of Adm. McCain, Famed Task Force Leader

he recommended "killing them all—painfully to teach them a lesson."

McCain, whose 20 years at sea evidenced his indisposition to become a "swivel-chair" admiral, gained a reputation as one of the Navy's toughest fighters in the early days of the war when he commanded all land-based fighters in the Pacific.

He played a major role in the fighting at Guadalcanal and Tulagi. Under his command, carrier force 38 routed the Imperial Navy in every great sea battle between the Philippines and Formosa.

In recent months, the battle-hardened task force struck heavy blows against the enemy home islands.

During these operations, McCain from the bridge of his flagship, lambasted the Japs with verbal weapons which probably no man in the Navy but Halsey himself could equal.

Although long convinced of the importance of naval aeronautics, it wasn't until 1935, when he was 51 years old, that the ruddy, freckle-faced Navy commander earned his wings. McCain studied flight training at the naval air station at Pensacola, Fla., and learned to fly every type of modern plane.

"I was stubborn about it," he admitted.

He remained a staunch supporter of naval air power until the end.

"If anyone's in doubt about what won the war outside of the atomic bomb, I can tell them it was the fast carriers," McCain had boasted. "In fact," he added, "give me enough fast carriers and you can have the atomic bomb."

A native of Teoc, Miss., McCain came from a family that was predominantly Army. His uncle was the late Maj. Gen. Henry P. McCain, who was awarded the distinguished service cross for his services as adjutant general of the Army during the first World War. A brother is Brig. Gen. William A. McCain, USA, retired.

McCain attended high school in Carrollton, Miss., and from there went to the University of Mississippi, where he was appointed to the Naval Academy in 1902.

During World War I, he served as an engineer aboard the cruiser San Diego, forerunner of the mighty warship which led the U. S. Third fleet into Tokyo bay last week.

In August, 1943, the Navy recognized the importance of combined sea and air power and McCain was appointed to the newly-created office of deputy chief of naval operations for air with the rank of vice-admiral.

He left the post a few months later to go back to sea and win honor after honor for his direction of the mighty task force which in the last few months of the war destroyed or damaged 6,000 Japanese war planes and accounted for 2,000,000 tons of enemy shipping.

In addition to his widow and brother, survivors include two sons, Gordon, Pasadena attorney, and Cmdr. John S. McCain Jr., now serving in the submarine service in Tokyo bay, and a daughter, Catherine, a Red Cross worker in France. He also leaves another brother, Joseph McCain of Teoc, and two sisters, Miss Katie McCain of Teoc, and Mrs. Luther Spencer, Carrollton, Miss.

BUYING BASES IS SUGGESTED

and the United States wants. The most obvious answer is the bases built on land acquired by the U. S. from Britain in March, 1941, in the famous destroyer-for-bases deal.

The U. S. Navy already has indicated it wants permanent possession of 15 major bases in the Atlantic and Pacific. Two of those specified are on land leased from the British for 99 years—at Bermuda and at Argentina, Newfoundland.

In 1941 the U. S. acquired leases on sites for eight Atlantic bases. Six of them were acquired in a direct swap for 50 overage destroyers—at Antigua, Jamaica and Santa Lucia in the British West Indies; at British Guiana in South America; at Great Exuma in the Bahamas; and at Trinidad. Similar leases without considerations such as destroyers were acquired in Newfoundland and Bermuda—the two spots the Navy wants to keep.

President Truman told a press conference late yesterday that he had not seen the Navy's proposed plan for permanent possession of major bases extending from Newfoundland to Okinawa. But he reiterated that he favored U. S. acquisition of such bases as are deemed necessary for U. S. and world defense, and thought such arrangements could be worked out at the peace table.

It was considered doubtful that such a complicated job as negotiating for permanent bases the world over could be completed soon enough to play much of a role in the immediate problem of British financial assistance.

Flag Raising At 9:30 Will Mark Final Act Of Jap Capitulation

trucks and other vehicles about breakfast time tomorrow.

They will assemble at the main Tokyo railway station by 10 a. m. and then march 10 blocks to the embassy for the flag-raising ceremony.

The First cavalry band and the Seventh regiment, once commanded by Custer at Little Bighorn, will lead the parade with "F" troops of the second battalion providing a special honor guard for MacArthur.

For MacArthur, Tokyo marks the end of a long road that led from Manila in 1941 through Batavia, Corregidor, Australia, New Guinea and other island stepping stones to the enemy homeland.

He will arrive in Tokyo as supreme ruler of the country that once sought to dominate the world with her Axis partners. Hirohito, the Japanese government and the imperial general staff already are doing his bidding.

The Japanese people slowly have begun the task of repairing their bomb-pitted capital. Demobilized soldiers, clad partly in uniforms and partly in civilian clothes, slowly and painfully were filling in bomb craters and piling up rubble.

Tokyo was declared "in bounds" again for correspondents at noon today (11 p. m. Thursday, EWT). The first car of each of the two trains operating daily between Yokosuka and Tokyo were reserved for American officers and correspondents.

Admiral William F. Halsey, meantime, disclosed that an American prize crew has taken over the Japanese battleship Fuchi, presumably in Japan's inland sea. He also reported that five Japanese destroyers, two minelayers, two picket boats, four submarine chasers, six minesweepers, four submarines and 180 midgeet submarines have been seized.

Fleet dispatches said first units of Lt. Gen. John R. Hodge's U. S. 24th corps will land at Jinsen on the west coast of Korea about 2:30 p. m. tomorrow (1:30 a. m. EWT).

Japanese governor-general Abe, Lt. Gen. Yoshio Kozuki, commanding the Japanese 17th army group, and Vice-Admiral Gishaburo Yamaguchi, commander of naval forces in Korea, will surrender the southern Korean garrison of 185,000.

American occupation of Keijo, capital of Korea and 25 miles inland from Jinsen, will follow the surrender ceremony. An advance party of 25 men flew into the Keijo area yesterday.

Units of Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid's powerful seventh fleet units were scheduled to join Rear Admiral Daniel E. Barbey's seventh amphibious force in the Yellow sea today for the voyage to Jinsen.

Northern Korea has been occupied by Russia.

BIG INCH LINE EXPECTED TO BE ABANDONED

Washington news reports Friday said that the "Big Inch" pipeline which runs through Pickaway county may be abandoned but not destroyed.

Built as a war emergency measure at a cost of $90,000,000, the line has been a controversial issue for some time. No one oil company in the United States, produces enough oil in any one year to use the line at full capacity. Unless operated at full capacity the line could not be operated profitably.

Oil industry spokesmen, as well as some federal officials, have predicted that the system would turn out to be an expensive "war orphan". Now, in its third year of operation the "Big Inch" has transported 8,200,000,000 gallons of oil from Texas to the Philadelphia-New York area.

VETERAN BONUS DRIVE BEGINS

unemployment payments encourage idleness.

His amendment would simply strike out the unemployment clause in the G. I. bill, making the payments automatic for all veterans serving the minimum three-month period. Each serviceman would get $1,040.

Rankin's proposal is opposed by the Veterans of Foreign Wars and the Disabled American Veterans. They say any bonus should be based on length and type of service.

Their plans, though different, are both based on payments of $3 a day for domestic service and $4 a day for overseas service. With a $500 adjustment for wounds, maximum payments would be $5,000.

Omar Ketchum, legislative director of the VFW, said Rankin's bill would not suffice. He estimated the VFW plan would cost $25,000,000,000. Millard W. Rice, national service director of the DAV, said DAV's proposal would cost $40,000,000,000.

The only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Cline died at the family home in Worthington, O., yesterday, her death hastened by a complication of diseases.

TOKYO ROSE HELD
YOKOHAMA, Sept. 7.—The Eighth army proved a thorn in her side to Tokyo Rose—today she was in its custody.

It was uncertain just what will happen to pig-tailed Iva Toguri, 29-year-old Los Angeles Nisei who was the "Orphan Annie" of Tokyo's propaganda broadcasts beamed to American service men. First it must be determined whether she is still an American citizen.

TRAINING ENDS AT LOCKBOURNE

Washington Reports State Air Base Now On 'Stand-By' Status

Army Air Forces training will be discontinued at Lockbourne Army Air Base on or before September 30 but ultimate disposition of the base has not been decided yet, according to report from Washington.

Lockbourne and 14 other Army airfields which are to go on the inactive status not later than September 30, if not needed for post-war training purposes, are expected to be released to the surplus property board.

Officials at Lockbourne are awaiting official confirmation of the training shutdown from Eastern Training command headquarters, Maxwell field, Alabama, and have received no information as to future plans for the base.

Thousands of Army bomber pilots have been trained at the 2000-acre base near here. The original investment in the base, construction of which started in the winter of 1941-42, was $8,000,000 but hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent since.

It is reported Columbus authorities are seeking to learn the possibilities of the city obtaining the grounds in the event the base is abandoned.

VETERANS MUST GET LICENSE TO DRIVE IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, Sept. 7.—Frank M. Quinn, acting chief of the state bureau of motor vehicles, said today that returned veterans must have a driver's license the same as anyone else.

He added, however, that under the law an honorably discharged serviceman can obtain a driver's license without taking a test within six months after his discharge.

Quinn said that inquiries received by his office indicated that many persons apparently believed that a veteran does not need to obtain a license for six months.

Most officers must take a driver's test, however, because they receive certificates of service when they revert to inactive status. These do not exempt them from tests, Quinn said.

TRUCK WRECKED IN COLLISION; DRIVER IS FINED

David Eugene Shover, 200 West street, Jackson, Ohio, was fined $10 and costs, and committed to county jail awaiting payment of the fine Friday morning following an accident in which the coal truck which he was driving was completely destroyed when it was struck by a tractor-trailer outfit on Route 23 near Circleville, sheriff's department stated.

Shover was said to have been passing another vehicle on a curve, when the approaching truck appeared around the curve. Shover said he applied his brakes, but that they failed to respond, and he went across the road in front of the trailer-truck, deputies added. When the truck hit his vehicle, he went on into the ditch, and the back wheels of his truck were torn out by the collision. Coal was scattered all over the field, sheriffs said.

The trailer-truck was driven by Raymond Willis, 333 Newell street, Barberton, Ohio, and belonged to I. A. Barnett, Barberton. Willis said he was forced to cross the road to keep from hitting the coal truck more forcibly, and in doing so ran into a telephone pole, knocking two cross arms off of it.

Donald Harris, 186 West street, Jackson, Ohio, a soldier, was riding with Shover.

agency would mean a reversal of some of the new deal policies."

Sen. Alexander Wiley, R., Wis., complained that the message did not call for "demobilization of the over-expanded bureaucracy."

While some southern Democrats who have opposed new deal measures regarded the message as "new dealish," they were not inclined to pick a quarrel with Mr. Truman.

Rep. E. E. Cox, D., Ga., a southern leader who no doubt disagreed with some of Mr. Truman's specific recommendations, thought the message recognized congress "as a co-equal branch of government." He said it showed "recognition of the authority of public opinion and a disinclination to want any power not vested in the executive by the constitution."

HARWICK SENT TO COLUMBUS STATE HOSPITAL

A man picked up by sheriff's department in New Holland on August 19 who gave his name as Jean Harwick, has been committed to the Columbus State hospital, Judge Sterling Lamb, probate court stated.

Harwick, when taken into custody was wearing a jacket with the name "J. A. Murrah" stitched into it. Given examination by Dr. George W. Heffner, he was declared to be mentally ill, and has been forwarded to the Columbus institution for observation and treatment.

Fingerprints had been sent to the Ohio State Bureau of Identification and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, but so far no answer has been received from the federal office. The state bureau had no record on him.

At the time of his confinement to the county jail, the sheriff stated, he was poorly dressed, was suffering from malnutrition, and had about a 3-weeks' growth of beard. He had been picked up by the Cincinnati police department several days before he came here, but was released after being held for a few days.

Sheriff Radcliff said apparently Harwick has had some military service. He seemed to be familiar with Army and Marine Corps discipline, and seemed to know the location of a number of Army camps and military hospitals.

Dr. Heffner said he had been unable to get any intelligent response from Harwick, but said he was unable to adjust himself to his surroundings. He was reported by other prisoners in the county jail to have eaten garbage and cigarette ends.

THE MAN WHO KNEW JAPAN

IT is time to read Lafcadio Hearn, who lived so strange a life, wrote such exquisite prose and is now half-forgotten. He was born on a Greek island, of Irish father and Greek mother, educated in France, spent years in the United States working on newspapers in New York and New Orleans, with two years in the French West Indies. He quarreled with editors and employers, finally went to Japan to write a series of articles, married a Japanese woman and stayed there.

Hearn spent years studying and writing about the Japanese, lecturing at the University of Tokyo, trying to interpret the western world to them. He never really understood them, but he tried, and his keen studies help anyone trying to grasp what makes Japanese as they are.

Hearn's associations were with thoughtful university and religious people, touching gentle peasant folk at intervals, having little to do with anything military. In "Japan; an Attempt at Interpretation," he tried to explain Shinto. In a dozen charming tales and essays he sought to reconcile the modern scientific approach of Herbert Spencer with Japanese Buddhism. All his work is interesting.

Reading Hearn now does not make for softness toward modern Japan. Rather, it inspires a special horror at the results of the propaganda and evil training by military authorities in the last half-century. These men-turned-into-tigers of battlefields and prison camps show what can be done to humanity under control of demomilitarists molding it for their own ends.

But if men can thus be turned into ravening beasts, can they not, by methods of sanity and freedom, be turned back into men again? Perhaps. But it will take long time and infinite patience. Americans must make up their minds to that.

READING HABITS

NOVELS are not the most read books. If a survey of the National Opinion Research Center is correct, 45 per cent of the reading public read non-fiction to 35 per cent for fiction. Sixteen per cent say they read as much of one as the other, and 4 per cent are undecided.

This is fine, as showing a serious purpose among Americans. But trouble starts with two further findings of the Research Center. Adults over 40 read more non-fiction and those under 40 less; and on the other hand, women read more fiction and men more non-fiction. Does this mean that women are less mature mentally than men, or what?

It might be a reasonable guess that the women who read the cheap drugstore fiction to the exclusion of everything else have their counterparts in men who read nothing at all.

If the Research Center is bold enough, it might explain this further.

This is the miracle land; but can we dig up a few more trillion dollars?

Another thing this sad world needs is more ash trays.

WASHINGTON Report

Columnist Says Washington
Wives Overlooked at Fetes

Stage Dinners for De Gaulle
Cited as Glaring Examples

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

● WASHINGTON—Faint chip on this shoulder today. To wit—this administration's "feminine policy" of keeping the wives of public officials in the background—just a shade overdone?

The pendulum did swing back from the Rooseveltian status, which caused some hateful critics to ask: Does Mrs. Roosevelt tell the president what to do? But—I do think the swing has been almost too severe.

For example: Would it not have been very charming, indeed, if ladies had been included in those festivities honoring the French Provisional President General de Gaulle? Wives were definitely left at home while husbands rushed out to greet the visitor at the first big official dinner of post-war Washington. I understand that many of the wives objected to this Alice-sit-by-the-fire treatment. One night, at home playing solitaire, paying the monthly bills or writing letters. Ah, yes, that was permissible. But several nights in a row, while stag dinners blazed—that was too much!

I've written poetically about the beautiful teamwork of husbands and wives of the Truman era. But isn't real teamwork a matter of trotting side by side? It doesn't always mean that one

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—Mr. Truman is on his own, to wipe the lend-lease slate clean—or rather his own and Jimmie's (meaning State Secretary Byrnes.) Congress can and will do nothing. The lend-lease law, which now turns out to have been a give-lease law, also gave the President free power to make and close agreements, without guiding principles.

The original misinterpretation of Mr. Truman's announcement that we should not expect repayment has been amended by Byrnes and Senate Leader Barkley to an extent which represents average congressional opinion. Mr. Byrnes said we expected to get some undefined things he called "commitments" although not dollars.

The run of congressmen think similarly it would be impossible to collect debts, along the funding lines in which we tried to lower drastically and then collect a minor portion of the debts of World War I. The nations cannot pay, they say. It would be dangerous to impose any financial obligations on them, so why not forget the whole business? (This means, of course, our taxpayers must pay the deficiencies.)

No sentiment for any affirmative action to make Messrs. Truman and Byrnes take any course about the debts exists in either house. Some debating pressure urging Mr. Byrnes to get the utmost in commitments is present and will be exerted.

Nowhere can I find anyone who wants to ask—what of Russia? Who can say she is in no position to pay her debt? She has no internal war debt like ours, at least none of more than nominal consequences. I understood she started out paying us for everything she got, but lapsed lately. Dollar balances? Russia can mine gold for perhaps $11 an ounce cost to her and sell it to us for $35 an ounce (thereby getting about 70 per cent price reduction on goods from us) and by this means is in a position to repay, without hurt. Also look at her captured resources and markets in Europe and Asia, which have permanently enhanced her financial and economic position. In spite of injured industry does she not have genuine ability to pay?

The condition is different as regards the British empire, the Netherlands, France and others, including China—but not totally. The British, Dutch, French and Chinese (now expanded through Manchuria) control the world output of every material we are short of. True, they are financially on the brink (the world has put up some $18,000,000,000 to help them through the Bretton Woods bank and exchange fund) but after the war, they conducted world cartels and monopolies in such strategic materials as rubber and tin. Could not a small yearly percentage of that monopolistic production be applied to reverse give-lease to help us build permanent stock piles, or ever-normal supplies of manganese (which Russia has in abundance), tungsten, linseed oil, quinine, and even Pacific oil to keep our patrol battleships going around Japan in the interest of world peace, without having to ship fuel to them across that vast ocean?

Government authorities do not seem to want the West Indies and Bermuda which are valuable defenses and air bases, on the ground that we would have to support the poor natives. ### Gramicidin S, New Substance For Killing Disease Germs

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

GRAMICIDIN S is a new substance capable of killing many disease-producing germs. When applied to wounds locally, not only is it harmless, but it even stimulates healing. It is used in a 4 per cent alcoholic solution and is stable for at least two years and perhaps indefinitely. This means that it does not lose its power, even though stored for this length of time. It can also be made up into an ointment diluted with castor oil. It dissolves in oil easily.

It would appear that gramicidin S has the power to lessen pain, which increases its value in the treatment of wounds. Doctor P. G. Sergiev of England treated 300 patients with gunshot wounds, burns, abscesses and other infections. The solution of gramicidin S was applied daily for four or five days and at the end of this time it was found that the germs had disappeared from the infected wound. Thereafter the gramicidin ointment was used sometimes every two or three days.

Good Response

Many patients who had an infection for from four to six months responded well to the gramicidin S treatment, and were healed in twenty to thirty days. In those patients in whom a skin graft was necessary because of a large burn, the wound surface was washed freely with the watery solution of the gramicidin S before and after the skin grafts were made, and the results were always favorable. There is a serious infection of the bone marrow known as osteomyelitis. Patients with this condition were also treated with gramicidin S solution. In these patients, the solution was applied daily, and it was noted that the infection cleared up rapidly, the temperature dropped to normal and healing followed.

Skin Infections

The preparation has also been employed in caring for skin infections, particularly the one known as impetigo. This is a catching disorder which frequently occurs in epidemics in new-born nurseries. An alcoholic solution of the gramicidin S was employed and the average period of recovery in these patients was only a little more than four days.

Gramicidin S is obtained from a type of germ which grows in soil or dirt. In making the preparation, the germs are grown on a culture medium containing yeast and glucose, which is a sugar. It is not difficult to produce this substance. It is probable that as time passes, even more uses will be found for gramicidin S, but at present it constitutes a great contribution to the treatment of certain infections.

SYNOPSIS

SANDRA EDWARDS is an attractive, red-headed dress designer who volunteers to take 11-year-old SPENSER WITHINGTON, an English boy who was bombed out of his home, into her five-room apartment to live for the duration of the war.

YESTERDAY: A doctor is called to examine Sandra and he orders her to bed to be cared for by a nurse. Later she is to go west, for she is suffering from overwork and a nervous breakdown.

CHAPTER NINE

DAYS BEGAN not to have much meaning to Sandra. Whereas they formerly had been appointment-filled work days, they now were hours of idleness that ran together until she finally lost track of which day was which.

Mrs. Fennimore reminded her when she came to call one evening around 7 o'clock.

"I'm terrible," she apologized. "Spenser has been here a week and I've neglected you all that time." Still bubbling, she sat down on the extreme end of the davenport, beside Sandra Edwards' feet. The red-haired girl was lying, stretched full-length, beneath a taffeta comfort.

"All against the rules," Mrs. Fennimore went on. "But that seems to be the way we are handling Spenser's case. Besides, I knew you would get in touch with me if everything wasn't all right." She ran out of breath and, during the instant it took her to regain it, she studied Sandra. "Or," she asked slowly, "is everything all right?"

"Surely," murmured Sandra. "I'm just resting."

Her guest gave an uneasy shake of the head. "You look funny. Of course it may be because I've never seen you resting before."

Spenser had opened the door for Mrs. Fennimore, greeting her briefly, then stood, not speaking, while she talked unceasingly. He now spoke up, refuting distinctly, Sandra's statement.

"Everything is not all right. It is all wrong. Or has been, rather. Sandra fainted at the store. Mr. Wakeman had to bring her home. The doctor came and put her to bed. Since then, two doctors have been giving her various shots. And we have had a nurse every day."

At the conclusion of this information he sat down as if he had given a recitation. He folded his hands in his lap, and gazed somberly at Mrs. Fennimore.

"Well," she gasped, "you've managed to keep it a great secret. Why didn't you telephone me, Spenser?" Bob Wakeman, the doctors, the nurse—they were receiving no credit now. "I've taken good care of her," the boy stated.

The older woman's lips gripped her cigarette, as if she feared the amusement caused by Spenser's declaration would betray her. His over-estimation of himself must be taken seriously. The child welfare worker knew how important that was for his morale.

"I'm sure you have," she praised, then turned to Sandra. "Exactly, what is the story, dear?"

A smile touched the girl's pale cheeks. "I don't want to sound like a famine victim, but it seems I'm afflicted with malnutrition, nerves, anemia and a few such nuisances."

"I'm not surprised. It takes more than black coffee and ambition to keep a person's body in shape."

"You sound just like Capitola. And the doctors," mused Sandra. Without giving evidence of prying, they had managed to learn quite a lot about her barren childhood and early work-days. "Sandra" was not the only well-known name, in their professional experience, that had sprung to prosperity from poverty, bringing from that lack of money, a lack of stamina.

The medical men had told her, as tactfully as possible, that her less affluent days had left their toll. And they had explained what a fight she had before her.

She said to her gray-haired friend: "Mr. Wakeman is arranging for me to go west to a ranch and recuperate. He has a friend out in Copper Creek, Arizona, who accepts a few guests."

"How long will you stay?" "No longer than I have to." Mrs. Fennimore looked thoughtful. "In that case, I'll have to make arrangements for Spenser to remain here."

"Oh, no. I'm going along." The boy sighed deeply. "Of course it will be ghastly, but Sandra needs me."

Again the older woman felt her lips straining into a smile. She bent absently over a dish of bon-bons on the table in front of the davenport.

Sandra spoke up. "You'll love it, really, Spenser, when you get there. Boys like western life—horses and cowboys—" Her voice trailed to nothing.

Its pleading did not affect the boy's stubbornness. "No," he insisted, "it will be beastly!"

Again the girl made an effort to picture Copper Creek as an inviting spot, but the words died out. How could she make the place seem attractive to Spenser when it did not seem that way to her? But worse than the prospect of going to this strange wilderness was the thought of going alone. She did not think she could bear it if Spenser—or someone—wasn't along. Spenser preferably. He had endeared himself to her through the week she had rested in bed.

Yes, she must have Spenser. She argued that point during the several days before she was to leave, with practically everyone, for it seemed, everyone was against his accompanying her.

The doctors: "It is not what we would recommend." . . . "You will make a much faster recovery without him." And other differently worded suggestions that meant the same.

Mrs. Fennimore, at a loss for once in Sandra's experience: "I wish you'd not be so determined to take him. He doesn't seem to relish the prospect—oh dear, Sandra—I do feel so responsible."

Bob Wakeman: "You're a determined sort, Sandra, so I know better than to tell you what to do. You'll do as you please. But really, my dear, you'd be back designing dresses for us a lot sooner if you'd go alone."

Capitola: "Oh, for goodness sake, Sandra. With him along, you'll have St. Vitus dance."

No person—and these close acquaintances were not the only ones who spoke their mind—seemed to consider Spenser anything but a nuisance. As the date of their departure neared, even Sandra suffered a reversal in her opinion of the English youngster.

The contradictions of his sudden, and incredibly bad behavior, were too much for her. They would defy the wisdom of a child psychologist. A well one, at that. Powerless to understand his quirks, Sandra felt more ill and despondent than ever.

Wakeman had reserved a bedroom for her, a roomette for Spenser. When I get on the Chief, vowed the girl, I'm going into my bedroom and ignore Spenser for the entire trip. It was so discouraging to see the solicitation he had evidenced during the first week of her illness fade into misdeeds. Silly, unbelievable ones, such as pretending not to hear her. Or making her shake him and plead with him to awake in the morning.

These inconsistencies, in his makeup, had her totally baffled. He could fight back tears and be adult to the point of unpleasant curtness. Yet, in no time, he could be babyish and demanding, stubbornly resolved to be the really sick person, the one to be considered.

Worse, he had her emotions wavering comparably. The night before they were to leave he had vexed her beyond endurance.

"I gave you my silver bell," he said. "So actually, you owe me my allowance all over again."

Despising his juvenile moaning, she nevertheless gave him another $5. That evening, after dinner, she tried unsuccessfully to get Mrs. Fennimore and tell her that she had decided, after all, not to take the British boy with her.

Late that night she was glad she had not rejected him, for she heard him sobbing in his darkened room, the shameful sobs one dares not comfort. The following morning she was angry again. At 30 minutes before train time he was nowhere to be found. At 29 minutes before train time, she felt her heart leap toward him.

"Here's the hat I promised you." He watched her put it on. Curiously, it was not at all bad. "I bought it with my allowance," he told her.

All the same, when they got on the Chief, at noon, she secluded herself in her bedroom, as she had planned. A well-tipped porter would attend to the boy, Wakeman, who had driven them to the train, had seen to that.

Sandra did not see her young charge again until they left the sleek, streamlined Chief at Ashford, and had crawled onto a tiny branch train, to be hurtled down to Copper Creek.

August is always the month during which every normally restless woman complains: "I don't see how I can possibly appear at anybody's party. I have not got one single suitable dress."

The past month has given women legitimate cause for complaint about the state of their wardrobes. Those dreary rayon garments, drooping apologetically from their bent pasteboard hangers. Those bob-sleeved, bob-tailed dresses you bought in desperation—"Just give me anything." . . . Those two years before last in which you never had a good time anyhow.

THE MAN WHO KNEW JAPAN

IT is time to read Lafcadio Hearn, who lived so strange a life, wrote such exquisite prose and is now half-forgotten. He was born on a Greek island, of Irish father and Greek mother, educated in France, spent years in the United States working on newspapers in New York and New Orleans, with two years in the French West Indies. He quarreled with editors and employers, finally went to Japan to write a series of articles, married a Japanese woman and stayed there.

Hearn spent years studying and writing about the Japanese, lecturing at the University of Tokyo, trying to interpret the western world to them. He never really understood them, but he tried, and his keen studies help anyone trying to grasp what makes Japanese as they are.

Hearn's associations were with thoughtful university and religious people, touching gentle peasant folk at intervals, having little to do with anything military. In "Japan; an Attempt at Interpretation," he tried to explain Shinto. In a dozen charming tales and essays he sought to reconcile the modern scientific approach of Herbert Spencer with Japanese Buddhism. All his work is interesting.

Reading Hearn now does not make for softness toward modern Japan. Rather, it inspires a special horror at the results of the propaganda and evil training by military authorities in the last half-century. These men-turned-into-tigers of battlefields and prison camps show what can be done to humanity under control of demagogues molding it for their own ends.

But if men can thus be turned into ravenous beasts, can they not, by methods of sanity and freedom, be turned back into men again? Perhaps. But it will take long time and infinite patience. Americans must make up their minds to that.

READING HABITS

NOVELS are not the most read books. If a survey of the National Opinion Research Center is correct, 45 per cent of the reading public read non-fiction to 35 per cent for fiction. Sixteen per cent say they read as much of one as the other, and 4 per cent are undecided.

This is fine, as showing a serious purpose among Americans. But trouble starts with two further findings of the Research Center. Adults over 40 read more non-fiction and those under 40 less; and on the other hand, women read more fiction and men more non-fiction. Does this mean that women are less mature mentally than men, or what?

It might be a reasonable guess that the women who read the cheap drugstore fiction to the exclusion of everything else have their counterparts in men who read nothing at all.

If the Research Center is bold enough, it might explain this further.

This is the miracle land; but can we dig up a few more trillion dollars?

Another thing this sad world needs is more ash trays.

Columnist Says Washington Stage Dinners for De Gaulle Wives Overlooked at Fetes Cited as Glaring Examples

By HELEN ESSARY

WASHINGTON—Faint chirp on this shoulder today. To wit—Is this administration's "feminine policy" of keeping the wives of public officials in the background—just a shade overdone?

The pendulum did swing back from the Roosevelt status, which caused some hateful critics to ask: Does Mrs. Roosevelt tell the president what to do? But—I do think the swing has been almost too severe.

For example: Would it not have been very charming, indeed, if ladies had been included in those festivities honoring the French Provisional President General de Gaulle? Wives were definitely left at home while husbands rushed out to greet the visitor at the first big official dinner of post-war Washington. I understand that many of the wives objected to this Alice-sit-by-the-fire treatment. One night, at home playing solitaire, paying the monthly bills or writing letters. Ah, yes, that was permissible. But several nights in a row, while stag dinners blazed—that was too much!

I've written poetically about the beautiful teamwork of husbands and wives of the Truman era. But isn't team-work a matter of trotting side by side? It doesn't always mean that one

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—Mr. Truman is on his own, to wipe the lend-lease slate clean—or rather his own and Jimmie's (meaning State Secretary Byrnes.) Congress can and will do nothing. The lend-lease law, which now turns out to have been a give-lease law, also gave the President free power to make and close agreements, without guiding principles.

The original misinterpretation of Mr. Truman's announcement that we should not expect repayment has been amended by Byrnes and Senate Leader Barkley to an extent which represents average congressional opinion. Mr. Byrnes said we expected to get some undefined things he called "commitments" although not dollars.

The run of congressmen think similarly it would be impossible to collect debts, along the funding lines in which we tried to lower drastically and then collect a minor portion of the debts of World War I. The nations cannot pay, they say. It would be dangerous to impose any financial obligations on them, so why not forget the whole business? (This means, of course, our taxpayers must pay the deficiencies.)

No sentiment for any affirmative action to make Messrs. Truman and Byrnes take any course about the debts exists in either house. Some debating pressure urging Mr. Byrnes to get the utmost in commitments is present and will be exerted.

Nowhere can I find anyone who wants to ask—what of Russia? Who can say she is in no position to pay her debt? She has no internal war debt like ours, at least none of more than nominal consequences. I understood she started out paying us for everything she got, but lapsed lately. Dollar balances? Russia can mine gold for perhaps $11 an ounce cost to her and sell it to us for $35 an ounce (thereby getting about 70 per cent price reduction on goods from us) and by this means is in a position to repay, without hurt. Also look at her captured resources and markets in Europe and Asia, which have permanently enhanced her financial and economic position. In spite of injured industry does she not have genuine ability to pay?

The condition is different as regards the British empire, the Netherlands, France and others, including China—but not totally. The British, Dutch, French and Chinese (now expanded through Manchuria) control the world output of every material we are short of. "You sound just like Capitola. And the doctors," mused Sandra. Without giving evidence of prying, they had managed to learn quite a lot about her barren childhood and early work-days. "Sandra" was not the only well-known name, in their professional experience, that had sprung to prosperity from poverty, bringing from that lack of money, a lack of stamina.

The medical men had told her, as tactfully as possible, that her less affluent days had left their toll. And they had explained what a fight she had before her.

She said to her gray-haired friend: "Mr. Wakeman is arranging for me to go west to a ranch and recuperate. He has a friend out in Copper Creek, Arizona, who accepts a few guests."

"How long will you stay?" Mrs. Fennimore looked thoughtful. "In that case, I'll have to make arrangements for Spenser to remain here."

"Oh, no, I'm going along." The boy sighed deeply. "Of course it will be ghastly, but Sandra needs me."

Again the older woman felt her lips strain into a smile. She bent absently over a dish of bon-bons on the table in front of the davenport.

Sandra spoke up. "You'll love it, really, Spenser, when you get there. Boys like western life—horses and cowboys—"

His pleading did not affect the boy's stubbornness. "No," he insisted, "it will be beastly!"

Again the girl made an effort to picture Copper Creek as an inviting spot, but the words died out. How could she make the place seem attractive to Spenser when it did not seem that way to her? But worse than the prospect of going to this strange wilderness was the thought of going alone. She did not think she could bear it if Spenser—or someone—wasn't along.

Spenser preferably. He had endeared himself to her through the week she had rested in bed.

Yes, she must have Spenser. She argued that point during the several days before she was to leave, with practically everyone, for it seemed, everyone was against his accompanying her.

The doctors: "It is not what we would recommend." . . . "You will make a much faster recovery without him." And other differently worded suggestions that meant the same.

Mrs. Fennimore, at a loss for once in Sandra's experience: "I wish you'd be so determined to take him. He doesn't seem to relish the prospect—oh dear, Sandra—I do feel so responsible."

Bob Wakeman: "You're a determined sort, Sandra, so I know better than to tell you what to do. You'll do as you please. But really, my dear, you'd be back designing dresses for us a lot sooner if you'd go alone."

Capitola: "Oh, for goodness sake, Sandra. With him along, you'll have St. Vitus dance."

No person—and these close acquaintances were not the only ones who spoke their mind—seemed to consider Spenser anything but a nuisance. As the date of their departure neared, even Sandra suffered a reversal in her opinion of the English youngster.

The contradictions of his sudden, and incredibly bad behavior, were too much for her. They would defy the wisdom of a child psychiatrist. A well one, at that. Powerless to understand his quirks, Sandra felt more ill and despondent than ever.

Wakeman had reserved a bedroom for her, a roomette for Spenser. When I get on the Chief, vowed the girl, I'm going into my bedroom and ignore Spenser for the entire trip. It was so discouraging to see the solicitation he had evidenced during the first week of her illness fade into misdeeds.

Silly, unbelievable ones, as pretending not to hear her. Or, making her shake him and plead with him to awake in the morning.

These inconsistencies, in his makeup, had her totally baffled. He could fight back tears and be adult to the point of unpleasantness. Yet, in no time, he could be babyish and demanding, stubbornly resolved to be the really sick person, the one to be considered.

Worse, he had her emotions wavering comparably. The night before they were to leave he had vexed her beyond endurance.

"I gave you my silver bell," he said. "So actually, you owe me my allowance all over again."

Deepening his juvenile moaning, she nevertheless gave him another $5. That evening, after dinner, she tried unsuccessfully to get Mrs. Fennimore and tell her that she had decided, after all, not to take the British boy with her.

Late that night she was glad she had not rejected him, for she heard him sobbing in his darkened room, the shameful sobs one dares not comfort. The following morning she was angry again. At 30 minutes before train time he was nowhere to be found. At 29 minutes before train time, she felt her heart leap toward him.

"Here's the hat I promised you." He watched her put it on. Curiously, it was not at all bad. "I bought it with my allowance," he told her.

All the same, when they got on the Chief, at noon, she secluded herself in her bedroom, as she had planned. A well-tipped porter would attend to the boy, Wakeman, who had driven them to the train, had seen to that.

Sandra did not see her young charge again until they left the sleek, streamlined Chief at Ashford, and had crawled onto a tiny branch train, to be hurried down to Copper Creek.

Obituary

John William Peters, son of John and Mary Margaret Jackson Peters, was born Oct. 17, 1883, in Gallia County, Ohio, departed this life August 22nd 1945, at the age of 61 years, 10 months and 5 days. A cerebral hemorrhage was the cause of his sudden death. He was united in marriage to Ina Anderson, Nov. 2, 1908. To this union were born five children, three of whom died in infancy. His wife having preceded him in death, he was united in marriage to Margaret Burkow Dec. 24, 1912. He is survived by his devoted wife, two daughters, Mrs. Mary E. Myers, 215 S. Scioto street and Mrs. Thelma E. Zeimer, Circleville Route 2. Three brothers, Ralph Peters of Ashville, Ohio and Charles and Clarence Peters of Circleville, Ohio, six grand children, Esther, Mary, Mary Elizabeth and Eugene Myers, Johnny, David and Paul Zeimer and a host of relatives and friends.

He was a member of the board of education of Wayne Township for 24 years, served as president of board for 16 years. He lived on the James farm by the Westfall school for 28 years and had been associated with the L. B. James family since the age of 20 years.

He was a devoted husband, a good father and neighbor. Always ready to help others in any way possible. He was very patient, though he had had poor health for several years. Everything humbly done in the home and was apparently on the way to good health again when struck by this cerebral hemorrhage.

How we all shall miss him, our dear husband and dad. He was our tried and faithful friend. A precious one from us has gone. A voice we loved is stilled. A place is vacant in the home no other one can fill. But we know you will be waiting on the bright and peaceful shore.

Where God allows no suffering and test days never fall.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all our neighbors and friends who so kindly assisted us during the recent death of our husband and father. We especially wish to thank Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Peters, all those who sent flowers, the singers, Dr. Kerns, the givers of the funeral, the funeral home and the funeral directors for their efficient services. All have been deeply appreciated.

Mrs. John Peters
Mrs. Mary Myers
Mrs. Thelma Zeimer

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to their friends and neighbors for their sympathy, kindness and beautiful floral offerings during the illness and after the death of our mother, Mrs. Minnie Burgett. Special thanks to Rev. W. H. Albaugh, pastor of the First Baptist Church.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

There can be no debate about the fact that our Allied friends have been short in "commitments" of every kind to us, political as well as economic; in fact have made none outside the United Nations organization which is strictly a mutual basis. The British, for instance, are socializing the bank of England while seeking a new dollar loan directly from us, in addition to the financial aid of the Bretton Woods agreements and promising to side with Russia on the continent. The Russians have resisted our policies throughout Europe, and what trade or interests we will get or be able to maintain is dubious. The field of "commitments" which could be made to us by our allies is limitless in both politics and economics, and involve matters upon which a friend who owes you money might well wish to make a "commitment" to establish good will—if we asked for it.

My inside information suggests Mr. Truman made his too-all-embracing observation for world consumption because his earlier cessation of give-leave had been a shock to the nations which expected to get rehabilitated at Uncle Sam's expense. A leading government official, just back from Europe, is telling his colleagues the astonishing extent to which they were shocked.

Actual closing of the books through Mr. Byrnes may be a less oned-sided proposition than slate wiping—I hope.

MAJOR LEADERS HAVE BETTER CHANCE TO WIN

Tribe Out Of Race; Cards Drop Five Games Behind Hard Driving Cubs

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The major league pennant races were at the "if" stage today and the burden of proof rested squarely upon the contending teams, with the leading Tigers and Cubs now able to take advantage of time, which rapidly is running out.

The tougher job belongs to the Tigers. Their lead in the American League has been reduced to a game and a half because they split a double header at New York yesterday while the second place Senators took two from the Browns at Washington.

However, if the Tigers continue their pace and win 14 out of their remaining 23 games, Washington will have to win 14 of its 20 to gain a tie. An important factor in favor of the Tigers is that they have a three game edge in the losing column with 56 losses compared with 59 for the senators.

If the third place Browns harbor any hopes of catching the Tigers they will have to win 19 out of 23 to tie them, while the fourth place Yankees must take 20 out of 24, provided the Tigers can hold their pace at 14 and 9.

The task of the Cubs is much simpler. No five full games in front they could drop below the 500 mark, winning 12 and losing 13 of their remaining games and the Cardinals would have to take 16 and lose seven of their remaining games to tie, a pace which they haven't managed to hit this season.

Washington provided evidence it isn't to be counted out and at the same time dealt a mid-riff blow to the Browns' hopes by beating last year's champions, 2 to 0 and 3 to 2. John Niggeling was author of a five-hit shutout, topping Newman (Tex) Shirley in the first game dual on the margin of a two-run double by Buddy Lewis. Larino Pieretti's eight innings of relief pitching and his three hits led the way to the second triumph. He scored one run and drove in another after replacing Emil (Dutch) Leonard who went out with a sore arm.

Detroit salvaged a 5 to 2 victory on the three-hit pitching of Les Mueller after wildness and Yankee homers, two by Aaron Robinson, and one each by Bud Metheny and Charley Keller gave New York a 14 to 9 opening win. Detroit pitchers gave 15 walks and hit two batters in the first game to nullify some power hitting by Tiger batters. Roy Cullenbine's two run homer started the Tigers to victory in the second game and he also got one in the opener.

Obituary

John William Peters, son of John and Mary Margaret Jackson Peters was born Oct. 17, 1882, in Gallia County, Ohio, departed this life August 22nd, 1945, at the age of 61 years, 10 months and 5 days. A cerebral hemorrhage was the immediate cause of his sudden death. He was united in marriage to Mrs. Anderson, Nov. 7, 1902. To this union were born five children, three of whom died in infancy. His wife having preceded him in death, he was united in marriage to Margaret Burgeon Dec. 24, 1912.

He is survived by his devoted wife, two daughters, Mrs. Mary E. Myers, 215 S. Scioto street, and Thelma E. Zelmer, Circleville Route 2. Three brothers, Ralph Peters of Ashville, Ohio, and Charles and Clarence Peters of Circleville, Ohio, six grand children, Esther Maye, Mary Elizabeth and Eugene Marvin Myers, Johnny, David and Paul Zelmer and a host of relatives and friends.

He was a member of the board of education of Wayne Township for 24 years, served as president of board for 16 years. He lived on the James farm by the Westfall school for 28 years and had been associated with the J. R. James family since the age of 20 years.

He was a devoted husband, a good father and neighbor. Always ready to help others in any way possible. He was very patient, although he had had poor health for several years. Everything humanly possible was done. He spent three weeks in St. Carmel hospital and again when struck by this cerebral hemorrhage.

How we all shall miss him, our dear husband and dad. He was our tried and faithful friend.

A voice we miss from home has gone. A place is vacant in the home no other one can fill.

But we know you will be waiting on the bright and peaceful

Where God allows no suffering and tear drops never fall.

There can be no debate about the fact that our Allied friends have been short in "commitments" of every kind to us, political as well as economic; in fact have made none outside the United Nations organization which is strictly a mutual basis. The British, for instance, are socializing the bank of England while seeking a new dollar loan directly from us, in addition to the financial aid of the Bretton Woods agreements and promising to side with Russia on the continent. The Russians have resisted our policies throughout Europe, and what trade or interests we will get or be able to maintain there is dubious. The field of "commitments" which could be made to us by our allies is limitless in both politics and economics, and involve matters upon which a friend who owes you money might well wish to make a "commitment" to establish good will—if we asked for it.

My inside information suggests Mr. Truman made his too-all-embracing observation for world consumption because his earlier cessation of give-leave had been a shock to the nations which expected to get rehabilitated at Uncle Sam's expense. A leading government official, just back from Europe, is telling his colleagues the astonishing extent to which they were shocked.

Actual closing of the books through Mr. Byrnes may be a less onesided proposition than slate wiping—I hope.

MAJOR LEADERS
HAVE BETTER
CHANCE TO WIN

Tribe Out Of Race; Cards Drop Five Games Behind
New York Driving Cubs

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The major league pennant races were at the "if" stage today and the burden of proof rested squarely upon the contending teams, with the leading Tigers and Cubs now able to take advantage of time, which rapidly is running out.

The tougher job belongs to the Tigers. Their lead in the American League has been reduced to a game and a half because they split a double header at New York yesterday while the second place Senators took two from the Browns at Washington.

However, if the Tigers continue their pace and win 14 out of their remaining 23 games, Washington will have to win 14 of its 20 to gain a tie. An important factor in favor of the Tigers is that they have a three game edge in the losing column with 56 losses compared with 59 for the Senators.

If the third place Browns harbor any hopes of catching the Tigers they will have to win 19 out of 23 to tie them, while the fourth place Yankees must take 20 out of 24, provided the Tigers can hold their pace at 14 and 9.

The task of the Cubs is much simpler. No five full games in front they could drop below the 500 mark, winning 12 and losing 13 of their remaining games and the Cardinals would have to take 16 and lose seven of their remaining games to tie, a pace which they haven't managed to hit this season.

Washington provided evidence it isn't to be counted out and at the same time dealt a mid-riff blow to the Browns hopes by beating last year's champions, 2 to 0 and 3 to 2 John Niggeling was author of a five-hit shutout, topping Newman (Tex) Shirley in the first game duel on the margin of a two-run double by Buddy Lewis. Larino Pieretti's eight innings of relief pitching and his three hits led the way to the second triumph. He scored one run and drove in another after replacing Emil (Dutch) Leonard who went out with a sore arm.

Detroit salvaged a 5 to 2 victory on the three-hit pitching of Les Mueller after wildness and Yankee homers, two by Aaron Robinson, and one each by Bud Metheny and Charley Keller gave New York a 14 to 9 opening win. Detroit pitchers gave 15 walks and hit two batters in the first game to nullify some power hitting by Tiger batters. Roy Cullenbine's two run homer started the Tigers to victory in the second game and he also got one in the opener.

Cleveland all but faded out of the picture at Boston, losing 9 to 3 as the Red Sox made 15 hits off three Indian pitchers to give George Woods an easy win.

The White Sox and Athletics split, Philadelphia winning 6 to 5 then losing 2 to 1. George Kell's ninth inning single gave Joe Berry the first game victory, scoring Bobby Estalella with two out. Orval Grove then won his 13th game, Wally Moses tripling and scoring the winning run on a fly in the eighth.

Bill Nicholson, apparently emerging from a long slump, hit a two-run homer to spark Hank Borowy to his seventh Cub victory, 6 to 1 over the Giants at Chicago. The Cubs made 12 hits off Bill Voiselle and Ace Adams.

Boston tied off ex-team mate Charley Barrett for a six-run inning and a 9 to 1 victory over the Cards at St. Louis, after which the world champions won the second game 7 to 3 with 14 hits. The Braves had their big rally in the There's magic in the air when Dunninger, the Master Mentalist, visits service hospitals where wounded GIs are recuperating. The miracle man of fabulous mental feats, who headlines a novel variety series, Fridays, has been busy lately teaching GIs the ABCs of modern magic. According to Dunninger, the art of now-you-see-it-now-you-don't has become phenomenally popular as a pastime with returning servicemen.

Any frustrations of the Spike Jones City Slickers, in the way of youthful desire to ring doorbells, are overcome.

One of Spike's fans has presented him with a complete set of tuned doorbells, practically the only instrument that hasn't been used in the Slicker's zany arrangements. Spike is now busy on a new tune, "I Started to Sneeze at Lake Louise When It Got Damp at Banff," featuring the doorbells.

Screen Star John Hodiak, who portrayed the brain surgeon, Major Oscar Turner, on a recent "The Doctor Fights" program, considers it his finest role to date and has ordered a set of recordings of the broadcast for his personal library.

Though their current co-starring radio series, "Hollywood Mystery Time," marks the first time that Constance Moore and Dennis O'Keefe have appeared opposite each other on the air, they have been co-workers in the movie field since 1941. Connie played opposite Dennis in two pictures that year, "La Conga Night" and "Nobody's Sweetheart," and again in 1944 in the musical, "Earl Carroll's Vanities."

Jan Pearce, tenor, heard regularly on "Great Moments in Music" has been signed as a lead when Arturo Toscanini observes the 50th anniversary of Puccini's "La Boheme" by presenting the complete opera with the Symphony in two broadcasts, Sundays, February 3 and February 10. Dr. Frank Black is current conductor of the Symphony but gives up the baton to Toscanini in the Fall.

Shakespeare, move over, the armed forces have found a more favored author; That's what "Blind Date" Mistress of Ceremonies Arlene Francis found out when she asked a GI on the network session what author he liked best. "We've all got the same choice," flipped the service man. "He's the fellow who writes the discharge papers!"
